personally drove the decision to keep the strike going in order to build Sinn Fein's support. For instance, see Shell polluting the Niger Delta, or the platinum mines in South Africa, where the company who "owns" the mines pay the miners a pittance, even though they make billions.

Overheard Lilo get into a disturbance with a staffer, as she begged to keep the bar open past closing. He hasn't watched the show in years and sometimes will wonder if the show is even still on the air.
